WELCOME TO CARNIVAL

Welcome to Carnival Memphis 2005 "A Celebration Of All and For All." This week represents the finale to what has been a fantastic year for Carnival Memphis, the Grand Krewe and the selected Children's Charities. When I accepted this position a few years ago, I knew there would be a lot of hard work as well as enjoyment during my tenure. From the earliest Krewe events last fall to the final Carnival week event, I have met many caring people in our community and most importantly made many lasting friendships.

As many of you know, Carnival is founded and operates on the basis of three "C's" – Commerce, Community and Celebration. While this week focuses on the Celebration of Carnival, the previous part of the year has been focused on Commerce and Community. For Commerce, we selected the aviation industry which is represented by King Phil of the House of Trenary. Phil has been Chairman and CEO of Pinnacle Airlines since he came to Memphis in 1997. During our Business and Industry Salute Luncheon, over 450 people honored the aviation industry as Jim McGehee received the Cooke Halle Award for his vision and years of service to the Airport Authority. Other individual honorees included John Moore, Northwest Airlines – King's Award, Brigadier General William Cotney, Tennessee Air National Guard, President's Award, and Bob Wilson, Wilson Aviation - Chairman's Award. Eight other companies were recognized for their contributions to the industry.

Carnival Memphis, the Grand Krewe and the Boll Weevils also make a significant impact on our Community through the Children's Charity Initiative. Last fall I had the privilege of watching a dedicated selection committee review over 30 proposals, make onsite visits and finally selected three children's charities to receive the raised funds. This year, our charities are S.M.A.R.T, Martha's Manor and The Carnival Memphis Kid's Café. The honored charities are featured in this Program, and I would invite you to read about them. I am happy to report that for the 3rd consecutive year we have again raised over $100,000 for the selected charities. Congratulations to all the Krewe, The Boll Weevils and the selection committee for your hard work throughout the entire year.

Again, welcome to the Grand Celebration, Carnival Week 2005! I hope you enjoy every event beginning with Crown & Sceptre Coronation Ball on June 3rd and ending with the Grand Carnival Ball on June 11th.

AVIATION

Each year Carnival Memphis celebrates the accomplishments and contributions of an industry that is vital to the Mid-South economy. This year's honored industry, Aviation, is one of the most important to the area. According to a University of Memphis study, one in every five jobs in the metro area is tied to the success of Memphis International Airport. Their pay and the economic impact of their work generate about $13 billion a year in the local economy.

The Memphis International Airport is an incredibly vital part of the community and has led to the growth of all industry in the Mid-South. Airport con-being true corporate citizens. These recipients also have one other common thread, a lifetime love of aviation and flying. They are all licensed pilots. Brigadier General William "Russ" Cotney received the President's Award for his lifetime of service to the Tennessee Air National Guard. General Cotney has worked behind the scenes to help get the $200 million Tennessee Air National Guard base built in Memphis.

Robert Wilson, President of Wilson Air Center, received the Chairman's Award for management excellence. The fixed-base operation often is called the "front door" to the city based on the number of Honoree businesses at this year's luncheon included: Aircraft Safety Equipment, Inc., Crew Training International, Federal Express, Floats and Fuel Cells, Intersky, The Hangar, Inc., The Memphis Group, Memphis and Shelby County Airport Authority, Northwest Airlines, Pinnacle Airlines, Tennessee Air National Guard, and Wilson Air Center.

This year's Business & Industry Salute also consisted of four awards given to leaders of commerce who have made their mark on our community not only through their business acumen, but also by passengers whose first impression of Memphis is Wilson Air.

The King's Award was presented to John Moore, Vice President of State and Local Affairs for Northwest Airlines. Mr. Moore was recognized for his lifetime involvement in the Aviation industry as well as his contributions to a multitude of organizations in the Mid-South.

The Cook Halle Award is named after Carnival founders and is presented to an individual that has most significantly impacted both his industry and the Mid-South community. James E. McGehee, Jr.'s commitment to the Aviation industry exemplifies the qualities of those who have received this prestigious honor. Mr. McGehee, Chairman of the Memphis and Shelby County Airport Authority from 1981 to 1997, helped set the airport's infrastructure in place, including laying the groundwork for the two-mile "world runway," completed in 2000. As the 2005 Cook Halle Award winner, Mr. McGehee adds his name to a list of some of the most successful business people, entrepreneurs, and corporate citizens in the history of our community.

Carnival Memphis congratulates all our honorees for helping create a successful economic climate in the Mid-South, which makes our community a better place to live.

The Business & Industry Salute is presented by Regions Morgan Keegan. The Awards Luncheon is sponsored by Rhea & Ivy, P.L.C.

PHILIP HARTLEY TRENARY KING OF CARNIVAL

This year, as Carnival Memphis celebrates the Aviation Industry, it is appropriate that the King is Philip H. Trenary. King Phil Trenary is President & Chief Executive Officer of Pinnacle Airlines Corp. Pinnacle Airlines is a regional carrier operating as Northwest Airlink and provides service to Northwest Airlines and its code-share partners at Northwest's domestic hubs in Detroit, Memphis and Minneapolis - St. Paul.

Pinnacle Airlines is regarded in the Aviation industry as one of the most reliable and top-performing small airlines in the world.

King Phil was born in Pawhuska, Oklahoma and raised in nearby Shidler. As a youth he loved the idea of flying and aviation. He built his first airplane in his uncle's barn and soloed at the age of 15. He obtained his pilot's license before receiving his driver's license. He continued flying any time he had a chance. Working his way through Oklahoma State University gave him a lot of knowledge and appreciation of other industries, but King Phil always knew the sky was where he wanted to be. During his college years at OSU, where he majored in Aeronautical Engineering, he launched the first collegiate aerobatics program. The now famous Flying Aggies aerobatic team has performed in competitions all over the country and was the top aerobatics team in the nation four years in a row. King Phil continued flying while at school and after graduating from college, became a pilot for Occidental Petroleum. In 1978 he and a partner began investing in and selling airplanes. That business grew into Aviation Services Flight School, which provided all the flight training for OSU. When King Phil realized that the pilots he was training needed a place to work, he formed the Exec Express Airline, a shuttle service between Stillwater, Enid, McCallister and Tulsa, Oklahoma and surrounding cities. That company later became Lone Star Airlines, which moved from Oklahoma to Dallas Fort Worth in 1985 to accommodate its remarkable expansion. By 1996, Lone Star had evolved into the first domestic code-share for American Airlines. King Phil later sold the company and retired from the airline business, although for only a short period of time.

After taking a brief break from the industry, on April 1,

1997, Phil Trenary decided to run another regional airline. He was appointed President and Chief Executive Officer of Express Airlines I (now Pinnacle). Since that time, King Phil has directed the development of Pinnacle Airlines into one of the nation's premier carriers. The airline has been expanding by approximately 50% each year over the past four years and Pinnacle has contracted with Northwest Airlines to operate at least 139 regional jets by mid-year 2005. In 2005 Pinnacle will have the privilege of transporting over 8 million Customers, substantially more than the 1.2 million flown in 2000.

Even with this remarkable expansion, the airline's operational quality and on-time reliability has never faltered, and consistently places towards the top of Department of Transportation rankings. Further, Pinnacle was recently recognized as having the lowest cost per available seat mile among the larger regional airlines in the United States by Commuter / Regional News. U.S. Senate Majority Leader William Frist recently appointed King Phil to the National Commission on Small Community Air Service. Also, Transportation Secretary Norman Mineta extended an appointment to the Management Advisory Council of the Federal Aviation Administration, which provides advice and counsel to the FAA's administrator on policy, spending, funding and regulatory matters affecting the aviation industry.

King Phil has been married to his wife, Bridget for twelve years, and they have three wonderful children, Justin, Brittney, and Pearce. Memphians by choice, the Trenary's have lived here eight years and have thrown themselves into the good works of the Mid-South community. Many charitable organizations can thank Bridget and Phil for their hard work and generosity, including: BRIDGES, Memphis Charitable Foundation, and the Memphis Symphony League. King Phil is the current Chairman of the Memphis Convention and Visitors Bureau, recent past Chairman of the Regional Airline Association and is a Board Member at the Memphis Regional Chamber, Memphis Music Commission and a number of other civic organizations. The Aviation King still flies as much as possible and holds an Airline Transport Rating for propeller and jet aircraft.

KENDALL HELLMAN ARNEY

QUEEN OF CARNIVAL

Her Majesty, Queen Kendall Hellman Arney is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Damon Starr Arney and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rudi E. Scheidt. She served as the Racquet Club Princess in the 2003 Royal Court of Carnival Memphis.

Queen Kendall's family has been very involved in Carnival Memphis, since the beginning of the celebration of Carnival. The Mystic Society of Memphis, Carnival's oldest Krewe has been the greatest beneficiary of the family royal lineage. Queen Kendall's Great-Grandmother, Dorothy Hohenberg, was a Memphis Duchess in 1938, the fourth year of the organization's existence. Her Grandmother, Honey (Helen) Scheidt represented Memphis as Duchess in 1972 and Queen in 1988.

Rudi E. Scheidt, the Queen's Grandfather, served as Memphis Ouro in 1977. Her Mother, Susan Scheidt Arney served the Memphis as the 61st Queen in 2001. When Queen Kendall was presented in the Carnival Memphis Royal Court in 2003, she kept a family tradition that was started by her Grandmother in 1949 and continued by her mother in 1973, and her Aunt, Helen Gronauer in 1988.

The Queen has just completed her third year at the University of Virginia where she is studying Government. Kendall is an active member of the Pi Beta Phi Fraternity where she served as pledge class President and was recently voted "Most likely to become the first female President of the United States of America." Kendall spends much of her time working at Madison House, a volunteer organization run by UVA students. She was recently named Program Director and is responsible for coordinating publicity efforts for a 24 hour crisis intervention hotline. She is also a student docent at the University of Virginia Art Museum and has worked with at risk children from the community of Charlottesville through the Museum's Early Visions program.

Kendall's commitment to community service began long before she entered The University as a student. In high school Kendall volunteered her time to help children with Down Syndrome and Cerebral Palsy as a counselor at Camp Live-it-Up. She also participated in Bridge Builders.

Queen Kendall graduated from White Station High School where she served as President of the student body, President and Vice President of Business Professionals of America, and was a member of both Beta Club and National Honor Society. Throughout her years at White Station she also held the Student Council positions of Sophomore Commissioner of Activities and Historian. Kendall was also a member of the Yearbook staff and acted as the editor of the Student Life section of the 2002 publication. With all of her leadership responsibilities it is obvious that Kendall is dedicated to serving others, and it is no surprise that her greatest passion in life is politics. Kendall was an active participant in the Youth Legislature program where she held the positions of Senator, Commissioner of Tourism, and Commissioner of Corrections. She was also selected to attend Tennessee Governor's School for International Studies. Her Majesty worked in the Nation's Capitol for Senator Lamar Alexander. She also served as a Page for the 2004 Republican National Convention. When she graduates next year from college, Kendall hopes to pursue both a Law School education and a Masters Degree in Political Management.

When questioned about her role as Queen, Kendall said, "It is such a great honor to serve the Memphis community and to represent the aviation industry as the 2005 Queen of Carnival.

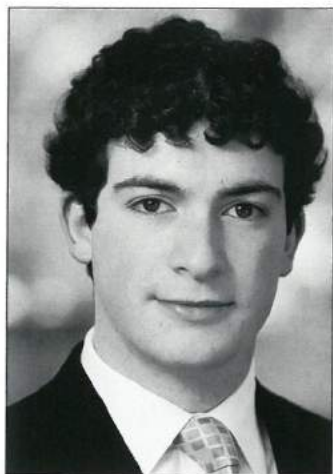

The three charities we are supporting this year are truly exceptional. I know that my experiences with Food Bank Kid's Café, Martha's Manor, and SMART will leave me forever changed and will eternally ignite my passion of serving others. It is my greatest hope that the Memphis community will share in my sentiments and perhaps be able to say in the future that I had the same affect on them throughout my reign."

The Scarabs get their name from the ancient Egyptian symbol that represents perpetual life and the sun's continual journey through the heavens. The Scarab symbol also represents Carnival's constant effort to promote our community and its many assets. The primary charge for our Scarabs is to serve the King and Queen and spread the spirit of celebration among all loyal subjects of the Realm of Carnival.
